Welcome to PPPL Procurement!

The U.S. Department of Energy's Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory (PPPL) purchases a wide variety of goods and services. Our needs range from raw materials to janitorial supplies to complex fabrications using exotic materials to scientific consulting services. Call us to find out if we have a need for the products your firm supplies.

Our Objectives:

- To make all purchases in the best interest of Princeton University and the United States Government;
- To ensure that courteous and ethical treatment is accorded to all suppliers and potential suppliers;
- To accept no gratuity or thing of value from Laboratory suppliers or potential suppliers;
- To obtain the quality product needed for delivery at the time and place required;
- To obtain maximum value for all expenditures by all ethical means, including effective use of competition;
- To buy from responsible sources of supply;
- To organize the Procurement Division to serve the needs of PPPL, to staff it with qualified personnel, and to ensure that it is properly supervised;
- To foster opportunities for small businesses to become Laboratory suppliers, consistent with the annual PPPL small business sub-contracting plan.

Small Business Programs at PPPL
